Introduction to BioAcoustics

Visionaries acknowledge that the human race needs BioAcoustic Biology to advance. For BioAcoustic Vocal Profiling to survive, practitioners, wellness providers, and trainers are necessary to move forward.

The state of your health may be in the sound of your voice! Sound Health is a non-invasive protocol that uses the frequencies and architectures found in the human voice spectrum to identify the innate mathematical BioMarkers that have been shown to be a holographic representation of physical and emotional health status.

BioAcoustic Biology has the potential to save people time and resources when it comes to their health. To date, there are NO competent medical services that demonstrate the potential to help the populace survive the threat of superbugs, to support DNA revival, to ameliorate vaccination damage and residue, to support our dwindling immune system responses...

The research being conducted by the Institute of BioAcoustic Biology is at the forefront of this modern approach to medicine, creating a doorway to our next dimension of the health revolution. The techniques of using math as a basis of wellbeing may be the means of restoring our intrinsic right to SELF-HEALTH.

Whoever controls health controls the quality of life. For most people, health is more precious than wealth. If we can BioAcoustically continue to manage our health, we have dominion over evolution.

Sound Health is the recognized leader of the cutting edge of Vocal Profiling BioMarkers, and we intend to remain in that posture. Sound Health develops innovative products to enhance life through sound-frequency protocols that will allow BioAcoustics SELF-HEALTH to become more distinguished, affordable, efficacious, and available by increasing our network of education and training in partnership with innovative schools and organizations.

Join Sound Health and embrace this pioneering path to new medicine!

Funding Opportunities

The courses at Sound Health were created to allow attendees to start building a clientele from the Apprentice Level. Scholars then can generate revenue while working through the courses to fund future BioAcoustic class opportunities.

Additional ways to generate funding for BioAcoustic courses:

- Sponsor a lecture or class and pay for your own fees with what you earn
- Approach several persons whom you think would benefit from your services and ask them to pay you in advance so you can take the class
- Find a local agency/organization/church that would benefit from your services and ask it to sponsor you
- Many times, your local employment/rehab agencies have training programs that will help you pay for retraining
- Check with your local alternative health practitioners or agencies. Some agencies might be willing to sponsor you in return for you working in their office.

Testimonials

Adrienne's Story: The Patient that was Left Behind, told by her father, Robert Rodgers, PhD.

BioAcoustic sound therapy has been a godsend to my daughter Adrienne, who had experienced debilitating pain episodes for the last two years. Adrienne spent four years in several hospitals this year alone. There was no determination of what was causing her episodes. No medicine offered relief from her symptoms. She suffered week in and week out as she continued to get weaker and weaker. Nothing they had to offer helped.

I recruited BioAcoustics pioneer Sharry Edwards to help identify the cause of her symptoms and develop sounds to address the cause. She did just that. Sharry succeeded in identifying several rare types of Parkinson's that were responsible for her episodes. It is the first time we have had any understanding of what has been causing the debilitating episodes.

This was the first time we have had an approach that is helping Adrienne heal. She has been listening to the tones for several weeks. Her episodes have become less frequent, less severe, her mood has improved, and she is now capable of being on her own. Clearly, healing from the inside out is happening for Adrienne. More time is needed for her body to come back into balance, but early signs of success are a true miracle.

Dad
Russ Rudy, MD
(Multiple Sclerosis)

In the summer of 2021, Dr Russ Rudy began to experience numbness in his feet and legs. He had a Syrx (fluid-filled cavity of the spinal cord) removed, but his health continued to deteriorate. After being treated by doctors at Ohio State University hospital as well as Cleveland Clinic, and being subjected to numerous CAT scans, blood tests, and 15 MRIs, there was still no diagnosis.

Dr. Rudy was eventually able to get a diagnosis from the Mayo Clinic. He had a progressive neurological disorder. The doctors didn't see any way of treatment and held out little hope. Dr. Rudy reported, "I regressed to the point that I was using a motorized scooter to practice medicine." Since the medical community offered no encouragement, Dr. Rudy stated he tried several alternative modalities. He said, "The main therapy that has helped (me) the most has been BioAcoustics. In May of 2005, I had an EKG that showed that the nerves to my quadriceps had completely regenerated. The nerves of the anterior tibial (front muscle of the leg below the knee) had also completely regenerated. The nerves in the muscles in my calf were regenerated at the rate of 3.1."

Dorothy E.
(Macular Degeneration)

BioAcoustics had reversed the initial black spot Dorothy E. had associated with Macular Degeneration. However, one afternoon while she was applying lipstick, she realized she could not see the upper portion of the left side of her lip in the mirror. There was no black spot; she simply could not see the single section of her lip.

A new vocal print revealed that the frequency for the equivalent to the lenses of the eye was below normal limits. In less than two minutes of the low frequency sound presentation, Dorothy had no problems seeing her upper lip. That lasted for 30 minutes. Dorothy then listened to the tones for 12 hours. Once the frequency was turned off, her vision was still intact. With continued BioAcoustic intervention, Dorothy's vision remained focused and intact. Her results provide hope for those who presently cope with Macular Degeneration.

Sheri S. (Depression & Thyroid)

Sheri, a young massage therapist, came to Sound Health in November 2007 at the suggestion of her boss. She had been suffering from fatigue and depression.

She also had problems going to sleep and waking up, as well as bouts of spontaneous emotions. She was hesitant in her speech. She had gone to a doctor to diagnose the cause; however, all her tests came back normal. After a tone trial was performed and the correct tones assessed, Sheri quickly began to feel a change. After only one night of receiving sounds, she boasted about feeling happier, more awake, and more emotionally stable. Sheri smiled and admitted she received 12 hours of sleep the night before rather than the three a night she was getting before the tones. The tones calmed her and were able to ease her sleep. She said, "It feels great. Incredible, in fact."

Tom C. (Autism)

In December 2007, Tom was an eight-year-old boy who loved dinosaurs and suffered from borderline autism. Like other children who suffer from autistic tendencies, he had undeveloped language, was sensitive to noise, and was quick to anger.

Tom's mother reported that in January of 2008, Tom had made significant progress since he began listening to his tones. After she had listened to Tom on the phone with his father, she noticed that he was now able to string sentences together, whereas before the conversations were silent. He now has intelligible responses. Tom's mother is in awe of the progress he has made and continues to support his ongoing use of BioAcoustics.
